"We have a responsibility, and a privilege, to serve all people. "Wachter says. " I want kids in rural towns and urban neighborhoods, longtime classical fans and brand-new listeners, to all feel: this is their symphony, and they belong here."

"Great organizations don't settle," Watcher says. They preserve and sustain, and they take themselves out of comfort zones, innovate, grow, and dream bigger. That's what the Colorado Symphony can and will do."
